Housing & Community Development

MESSAGE FROM THE COMMISSIONER

The purpose of this annual report is to inform stakeholders and the larger community about our accomplishments this past year, and to highlight the vision, community development framework, and equity statement that drives both what we do every day and how we do it. I hope as you read this report, you share my sense of pride and excitement about the direction we are taking and the progress we are making. This progress is made possible because of the talent and dedication of the leadership and staff at DHCD, as well as the incredible commitment and contributions of all our partners. Our partners in community, in advocacy, in anchor institutions, in philanthropy and in business and development, inspire and equip us with the insight, resources, sense of urgency, and expertise to make better decisions and to take actions that move us towards more thriving and equitable neighborhoods. There is so much to do and so much to do better.

There are a few headlines from our work in Calendar Year 2019 that I want to highlight:

- We made significant and strategic investments in affordable housing and in homeownership support, a critical priority for us and our partners.
- Working closely with our community partners, we made long awaited awards of land and property in many neighborhoods including Park Heights, Upton, and in Coldstream Homestead Montebello. These awards leveraged greater investment and advanced broader community development agendas critical for revitalization.
- We continued to show strong results on our customer service, responding on time to over 90% of our citizen service requests for housing inspections for the third consecutive year.
- We shifted our practices, formed new partnerships, and expanded our investments with a priority on building our collective capacity to support equitable community development in long-disinvested communities, including providing new sources for operating and capital support and focusing on emerging organizations.

More details and data are provided in this report.

While Calendar Year 2019, which opened with a federal government shutdown, our Mayor resigning, and a punishing cyber attack, was indeed a difficult year, it was also the year that DHCD launched A New Era of Neighborhood Investment, A Framework for Community Development. Informed by our partners, The Framework is an effort by a newly independent agency to be transparent about its direction and to clearly communicate its values. The Framework continues to guide us and we look forward to expanding and updating it in the near future.

2020 came with an even greater set of challenges, and DHCD has risen to meet them. We look forward to sharing more about that and about our current work and progress in the months ahead. Once again, I am grateful for the dedication of DHCD's staff and its partners. For our Calendar Year 2019 report, unfortunately delayed by these recent challenges, we were intentionally brief, but we are happy to expand on any of the information provided, and we welcome your feedback. Thank you for your support and partnership. Buoyed by what we have accomplished in the past year and motivated by our awareness of the work left to do, we look forward to our ongoing collaboration, with and for the citizens of Baltimore.

Michael Braverman, Commissioner

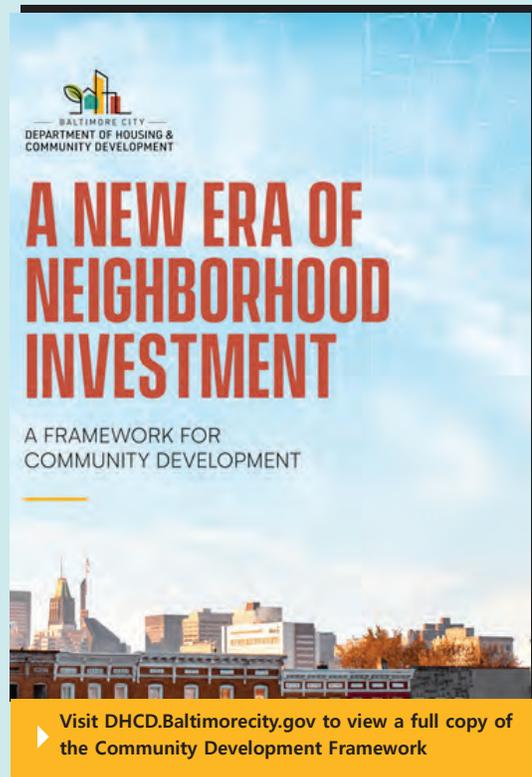

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT FRAMEWORK

In 2019, the Baltimore City Department of Housing & Community Development (DHCD) released its Community Development Framework which articulates DHCD's overall strategic approach to community development and neighborhood revitalization. The Framework is organized around three key strategies, annotated below.

Expand Resources and Capacity for Strategic Community Development

Revitalization of long-disinvested communities requires a detailed development and investment strategy and new and expanded sources of capital and operating dollars deployed in a complementary fashion to implement the overall strategy.

Promote Access and Equity

Equity in housing and community development must begin with our acknowledgement that the history of slavery and institutional racism is undeniably woven into the fabric of present conditions. Equitable community development requires working purposefully to address these long-standing, race-based barriers that have devastated neighborhoods, concentrated poverty and created an affordable housing crisis. This means achieving economically stable, thriving, mixed-income communities while at the same time promoting racial equity, minimizing displacement, and maintaining the culture and character of our neighborhoods. To achieve these ends DHCD has committed to:

- Ensuring community voices are central to shaping neighborhood redevelopment;
- Minimizing the displacement that can occur with rising values;
- Supporting existing homeowners and residents to help them stay in their homes;
- Maximizing Baltimoreans' access to jobs and entrepreneurial opportunities created by reinvestment;
- Prioritizing affordable housing in neighborhood revitalization efforts from the outset, not as an afterthought; and
- Building an implementation team that represents Baltimore.

Invest in all Neighborhoods

Unique, individual neighborhoods represent the heart of Baltimore city. Every neighborhood is different. While community development goals are the same, the approach in each neighborhood must be tailored to current conditions in that neighborhood. This means that the strategic intervention does not look the same in every area of the city. DHCD invests in all areas of the city but our approach, the type of investment, and our ability to leverage private investment will vary across neighborhoods and over time.

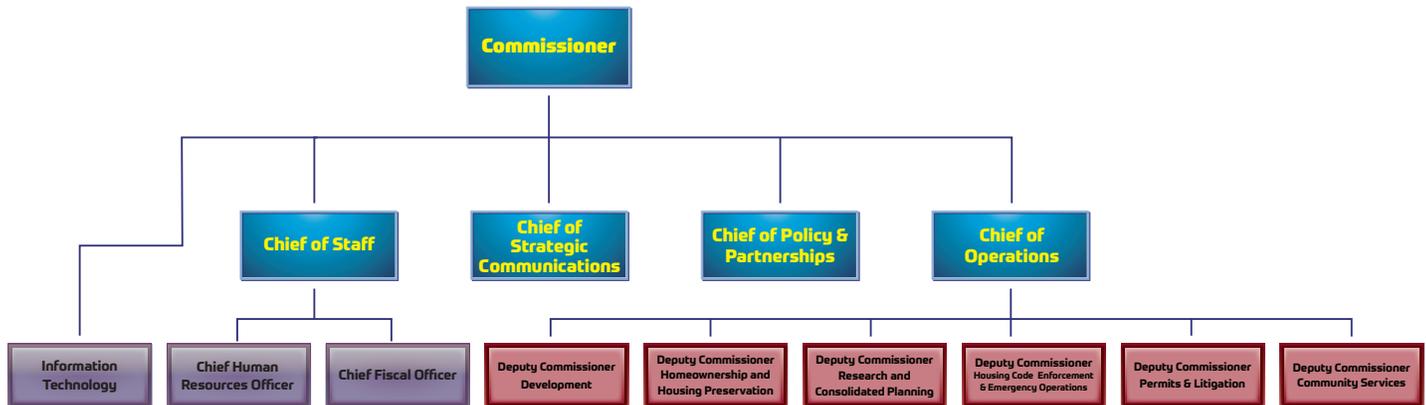

SERVING BALTIMORE'S RESIDENTS

Organizational Chart

Development

Newly constituted in 2019, the Development Division leads neighborhood and community redevelopment activities for DHCD, aligning both internal and external financing resources with the disposition of real property assets that are consistent with community plans and vision.

- Underwrites and finances affordable housing and critical community development projects.
- Coordinates with various City, State and Federal agencies on development projects by providing construction and program compliance oversight for affordable housing projects.
- Strategically acquires, manages, markets and solicits proposals for redevelopment of real property.
- Serves as primary point of contact for neighborhood partners and coordinates across the Department's various Divisions and other City Departments.
- Provides critical financial operating support for both established and new and emerging community-based organizations.

Research & Consolidated Planning

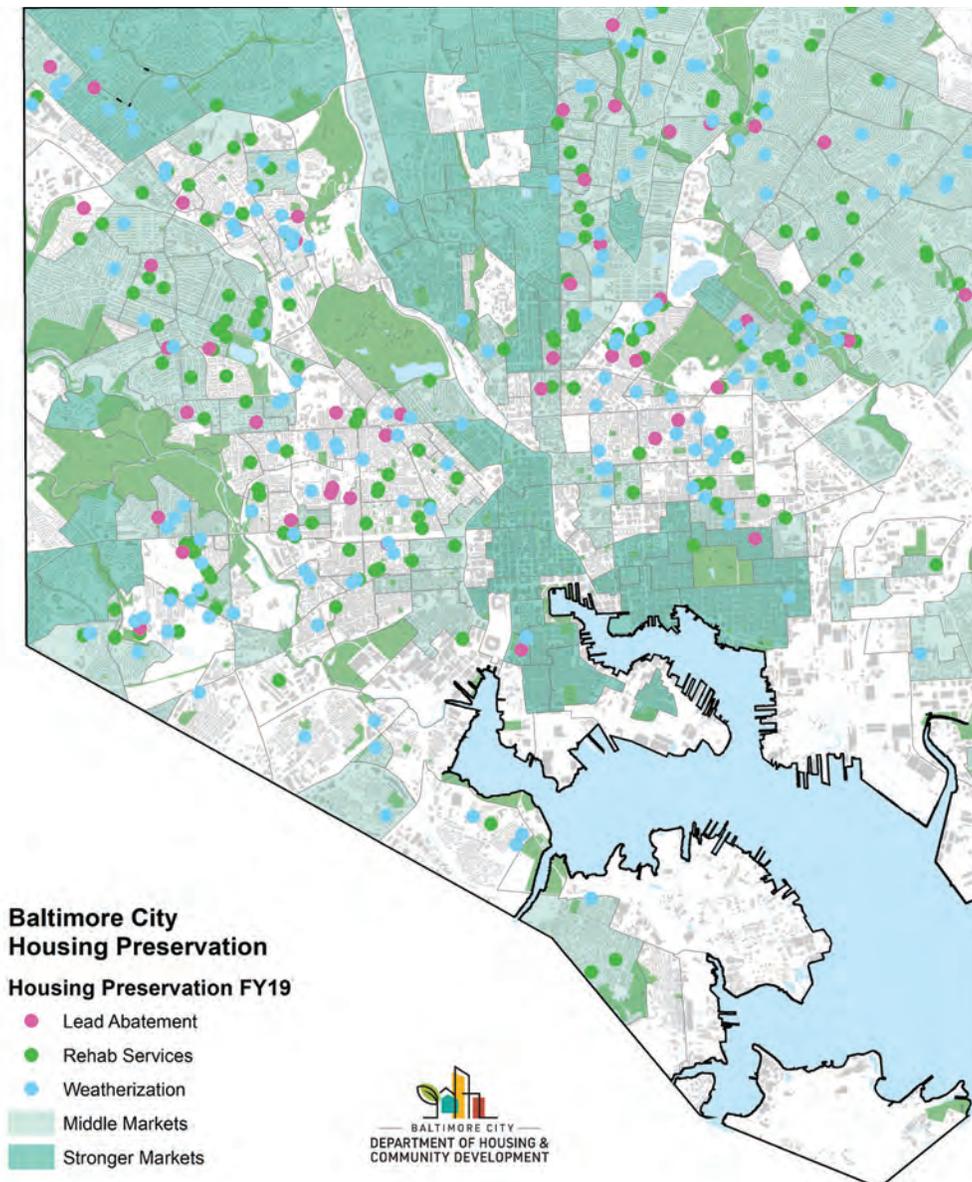

The Research & Consolidated Planning division coordinates the receipt and retention of United States Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grant resources to support community development activities in the city. It also manages the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program and houses the Department's quantitative, Geographic Information System (GIS) and research functions.

- Oversees the production of the Five-Year Consolidated Plan and Annual Action Plans through which HUD formula grant funds are secured.
- Provides a wide range of mapping and data support for DHCD Divisions and manages the CodeMap on-line mapping and data tool available to City agencies and the public.

Homeownership & Housing Preservation

DHCD supports current and future homeowners in Baltimore city through the Division of Homeownership and Housing Preservation. Preserving legacy homeownership and promoting new affordable homeownership opportunities are primary components of the Department's equity strategy.

- Assists low- and moderate-income homeowners to make repairs to their homes, addressing emergencies, code violations and health and safety issues, including roofing and heating.
- Supports low-and moderate-income homeowners with weatherization, lead hazard reduction, and accessibility modification programs.
- Assists homeowners who face tax sale and estate issues.
- Supports new homeowners through a set of homebuyer incentives.

Housing Code Enforcement & Emergency Operations

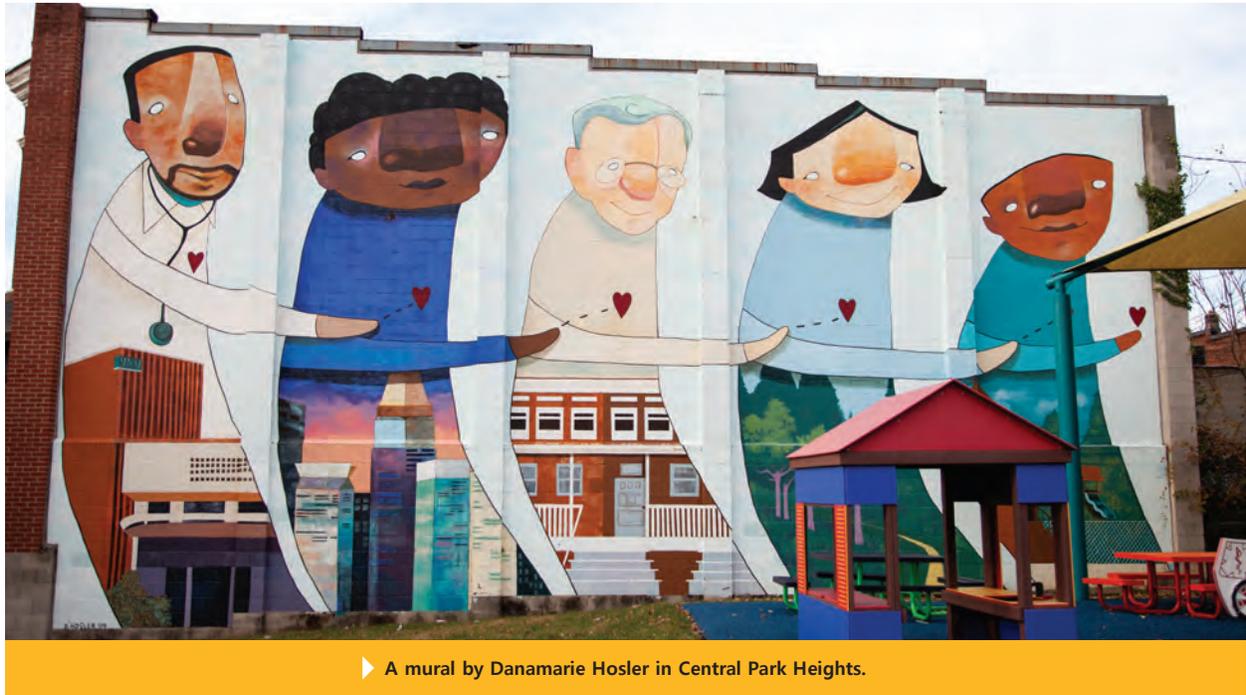

The Housing Code Enforcement & Emergency Operations Division maintains safe and attractive neighborhoods through the enforcement of the property maintenance; zoning; and building, fire, and related codes. The Division represents DHCD and coordinates the emergency response efforts for the agency when the City's Emergency Operations Center (EOC) is activated.

- Conducts over 200,000 property maintenance inspections each year while monitoring every vacant building and parcel in the city for corrective maintenance.
- Assists the public with understanding owner and tenant responsibilities including the parameters for taking corrective action on properties when necessary.
- Coordinates with other City agencies including the Departments of Public Works and Transportation for resolutions to property maintenance efforts.
- Responds to over 55,000 citizen requests for service within 3 days.
- Operates an Inspector Apprentice program creating job opportunities.
- Provides EOC coverage at the emergency operations center for the agency and helps to coordinate any response needed in the event of an emergency.

Permits & Litigation

The Permits and Litigation Division ensures compliance with the Baltimore City Building Code and other laws pertaining to construction and occupancy. The Division also issues building permits and provides inspections for construction, alteration, electrical, mechanical and plumbing work in both commercial and residential structures and oversees City demolition of vacant and blighted properties.

- Issues over 30,000 construction permits and annually conducts over 70,000 trade inspections.
- Conducts investigations of illegal dumping and leads enforcement litigation for the agency.
- Administers Baltimore's national best practice "receivership" program through which vacant properties can be auctioned to new prequalified owners, reducing blight throughout the city. More than 400 receivership cases were filed in 2019.
- In 2019, oversaw the expansion of inspection, licensure and registration requirements for all rental units in the City (previously only owners of rental properties with three or more units needed to be licensed), created an on-line portal for licensure and a new inspection process.
- Oversees City demolition dedicated to eliminating blight, promoting public safety and clearing sites for redevelopment. 2019 saw a ten-year high in the number of demolitions through combined efforts of the City and the State Project C.O.R.E. or Creating Opportunities for Renewal and Enterprise program.

Community Services

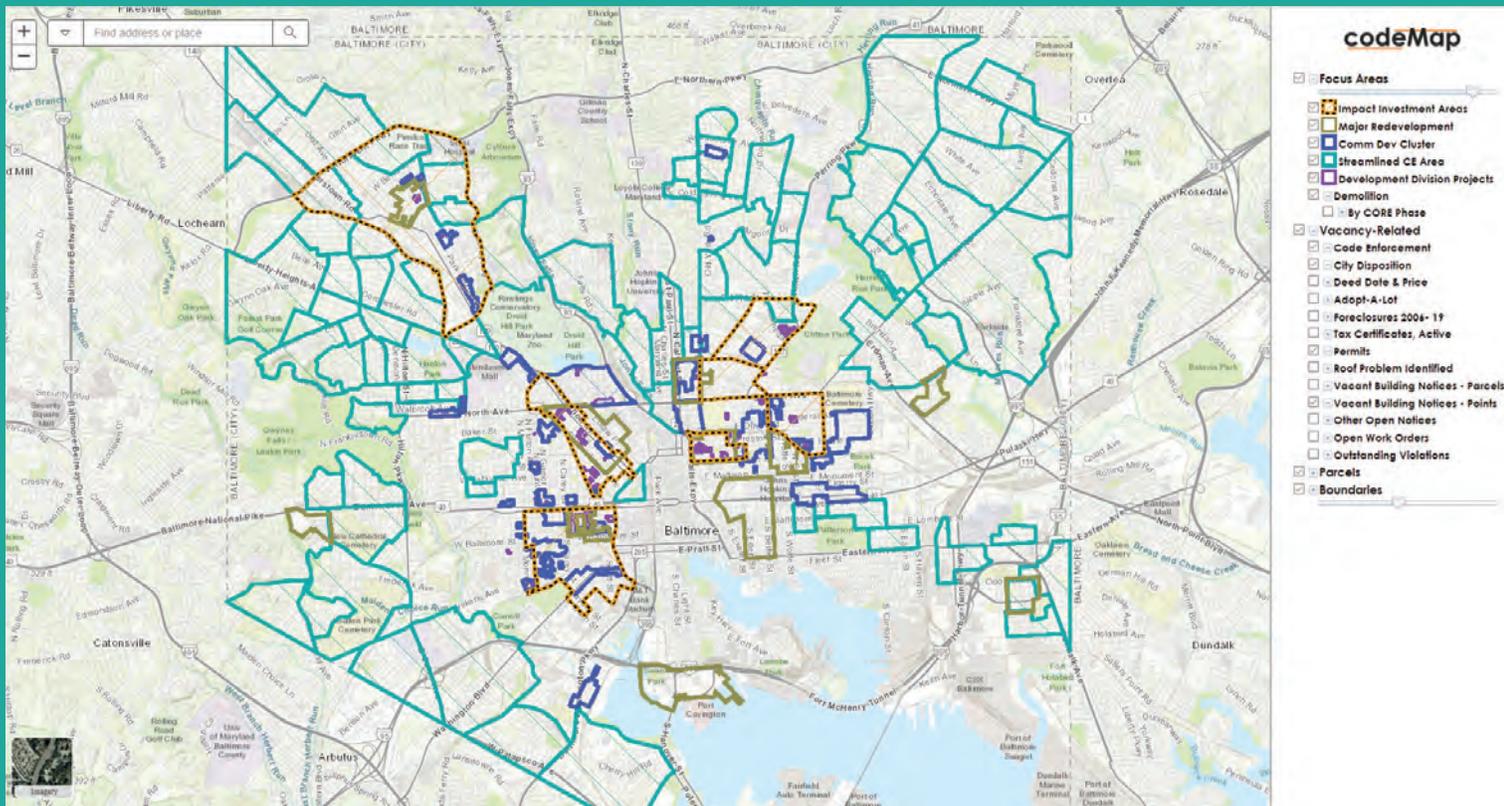

The Community Services Division annually provides a range of support to hundreds of Baltimore households facing difficult circumstances including displacement due to fires, floods or other crises. Community Services also:

- Provides food, clothing, and emergency relocation services to Baltimore families who are in danger of homelessness.
- Operates three community programs for youth providing before- and after-school care, including the Dawson Center.
- Assists families facing eviction.

Administration

The DHCD Divisions are aided by a business support team that includes fiscal management, procurement, human resources and staff development, and facilities support. In addition, DHCD's Information Technology team (IT) not only supports day-to-day technology needs, but also has a long history of internal application development and support, such as the CHIP inspections system and the rental registration portal, which has saved the City millions in software development costs. In 2019, IT led the Department's response to the cyber attack on City government and managed the smooth migration from Housing Authority servers to the Baltimore City Information Technology networks.

- DHCD Communications leads the overall Agency messaging, conducts media operations by interacting with a wide range of local and national outlets by generating press releases and responding to inquiries, produces and shares social media content, maintains the Agency's website, develops products such as this Annual Report and provides design support for Divisions.
- The Office of Policy and Partnerships manages DHCD's legislative and policy activities and supports internal strategic planning and alignment.

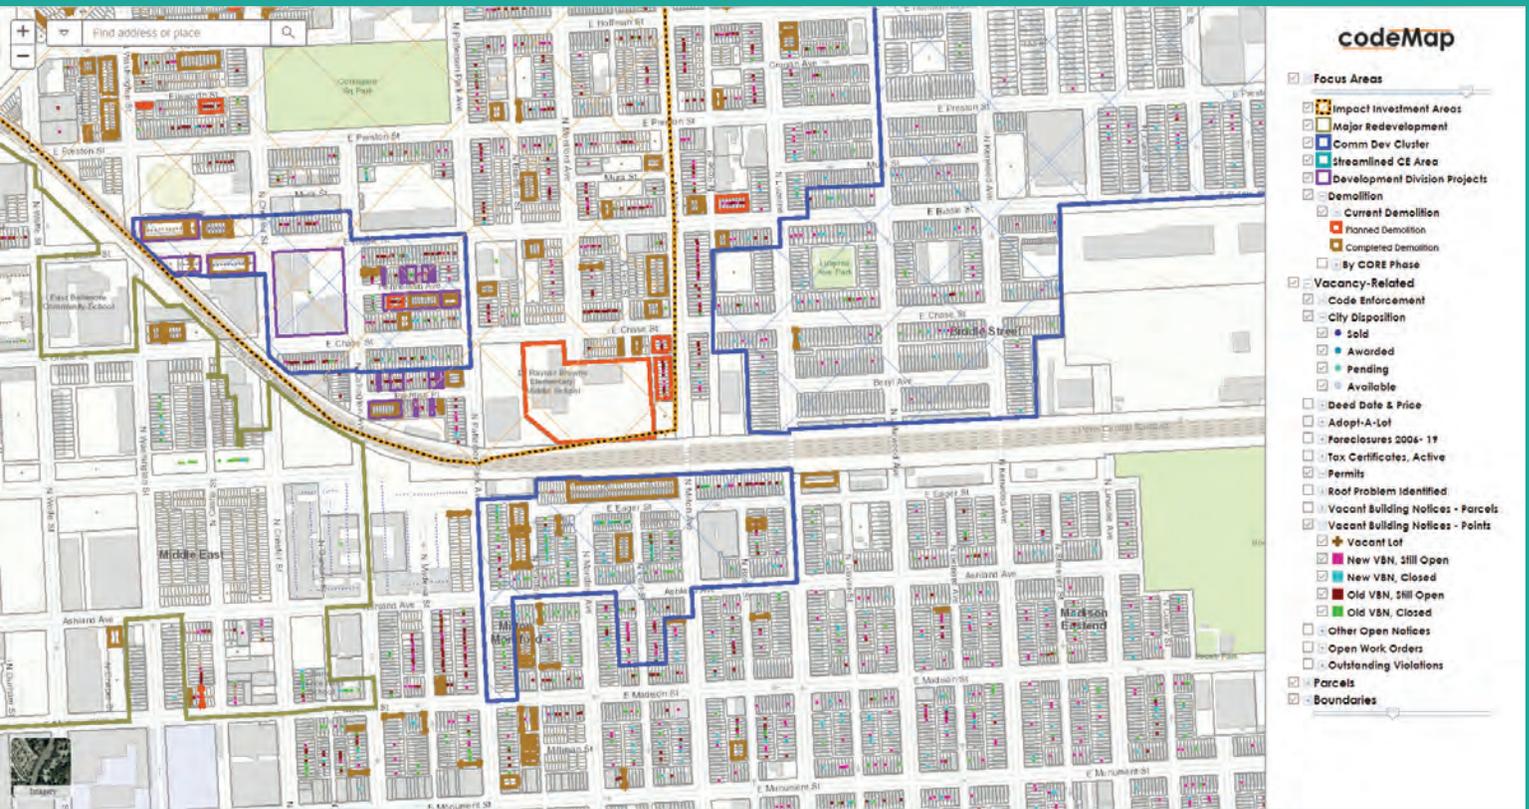

BALTIMORE CODEMAP:

The GIS Tool Helping DHCD With Strategic Planning

DHCD is committed to data informed decision-making processes. CodeMap is a critical resource for this process. It uses multiple data sets to spatially portray on-ground-conditions, real estate activity and community development opportunities on a parcel-, block-, neighborhood- and citywide level. The application allows users to display dozens of public datasets and link to external tools such as Google Maps and the State Department of Assessments & Taxation (SDAT) system.

This GIS tool, originally designed for DHCD staff, is also available to the public. During 2019, CodeMap 2.0, which added new data layers and functionality, was launched. Demolition data was added along with neighborhood profiles allowing users to view demographic and socioeconomic data by neighborhood. Other new data layers included: cleaning and boarding work orders, Development Division projects, Impact Investment Areas, outstanding lead violations, Opportunity Zones, Neighborhood Impact Investment Fund (NIIF) areas, school zones and HUD low- and moderate-income areas. Further upgrades are planned for 2020.

INVESTING IN NEIGHBORHOODS

City and State officials during the Harlem-Edmondson RFP Award Press Event.

INVESTING IN NEIGHBORHOODS

In 2019, three long-standing, large-scale new construction or multi-block rehabilitation projects took major steps forward. Projects at this scale reposition long-disinvested neighborhoods in the marketplace and provide critical mass for equitable community revitalization.

Upton: 800 Edmondson and Harlem Avenue

In March, DHCD awarded 38 vacant, historic rowhomes on the 800 blocks of Edmondson and Harlem Avenues to Upton Renaissance, LLC. The selected developer will rehabilitate these elegant townhomes and bring new homeowners to the Upton neighborhood. These critical blocks were originally acquired by the City in the early 2000s to bolster the then newly built Heritage Crossing development and extend its positive market impact into West Baltimore. With the support of the Upton Planning Committee, the State of Maryland, and the City, Upton Renaissance will realize this strategic vision.

- Project achieves a whole block turnaround with restoration of these City-owned three-story Italianate rowhouses for new buyers.
- Upton Renaissance, LLC, is a minority-led, experienced development team including Tower Hill Harrison Development, Parris Development and Stanton View Development.
- The Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development C.O.R.E. program has provided $1 million to stabilize the units and the City is committing $1.7 million in City capital to support redevelopment.

► Commissioner Michael Braverman addressing City officials and attendees during the Harlem-Edmondson RFP Award Press Event.

Coldstream Homestead Montebello: Tivoly Redevelopment

In June, DHCD awarded the first phase of the “Tivoly Triangle” site in the heart of the Coldstream Homestead Montebello community to Leon N. Weiner and Associates and Urban Green, LLC. The selected developer will ultimately construct a new “eco-village” development on nine-acres of cleared land replacing a blighted site with a new unique and attractive, homeownership community.

- The first phase of the project includes a mix of housing options with 34 duplexes and 5 single-family homes.
- Homes are priced from $250,000 to attract middle-class families and anchor ongoing revitalization of the CHM neighborhood in partnership with the Coldstream Homestead Montebello Community Corporation.
- Homes will be locally manufactured by Baltimore-based Blueprint Robotics using computer-based design and robotic technology and will include state-of-art solar energy-efficient systems.
- The development will be Baltimore’s first “net-zero” neighborhood with homes that generate 100 percent of the energy they consume using efficient design and renewal energy sources such as solar.
- The City of Baltimore and State of Maryland via Project C.O.R.E have invested over $10 million in removing blight and preparing the site for redevelopment.

Park Heights: Major Redevelopment Area

In September, after years of planning and acquisition, the first 17-acre phase of a 68-acre Major Redevelopment Area in Central Park Heights was awarded to the NHP Foundation (NHPF) development team. When completed, the development will offer rental and homeowner opportunities at market rate and affordable prices, a mix of retail sites, and attractive public open space.

- Development will include 288 housing units in a mix of styles including townhomes and multi-family apartments.
- The project is a component of a holistic, whole-neighborhood revitalization. Other public amenities include the expansion of C.C. Jackson Park, a proposed new library, community garden space, an urban plaza, pocket parks and two newly built or reconstructed 21st Century Schools - Arlington Elementary and Pimlico Elementary/Middle School.
- The development team has extensive national and local experience and includes the NHP Foundation, the Henson Development Company and Merenberg Enterprises, Inc., and will work closely with community partners led by Park Heights Renaissance.
- Land assembly and site clearance for the 68-acre site totaled more than $13 million in City, slots related revenue, and State Project C.O.R.E. resources.
- Estimated to be completed in 2025, the project will leverage $68 million in new investment and $130 million in total economic output including $47 million in labor income and 804 jobs.

Perkins Somerset Oldtown: Choice Neighborhood

Located within minutes of Downtown Baltimore and the thriving waterfront, Perkins Somerset Oldtown (PSO) is a community of over 5,939 residents in 2,122 households. Built in 1942, the Perkins Homes public housing site at the center of this area has long outlived its useful life. The long-term vision of the PSO transformation Plan is to transform Perkins Homes and the surrounding community into a Community of Choice, an inviting area that promotes resident pride and unity among neighbors and is integrated into the surrounding area—a new model for a 21st century urban neighborhood.

The redevelopment project includes 629 new units of public housing, a one-for-one replacement for current Perkins Homes ensuring no current households are displaced. The project will incorporate over 400 additional market-rate and affordable units of family housing to ensure a thriving mixed-income neighborhood. PSO is a holistic neighborhood revitalization including the restoration of the Oldtown retail district, a newly constructed, state-of-the-art City Springs Elementary-Middle School, a rebuilt Chick Webb recreation Center, as well as park, streetscape and infrastructure upgrades. This project represents $800 million in total investment and is supported by a $30 million Neighborhood Choice grant from federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, as well as multi-year, multi-million commitments from the State and the City.

In July, the first phase of the project broke ground - 1234 McElderry Apartments, a $30 million 104 unit mixed-income rental project with 84 affordable units and 20 market-rate units.

East Impact Investment Area: HOEN Building

In 2019, with the additional assistance of two CCC grants, the renovation of the historic Hoen Building as the Center for Neighborhood Innovation was completed. The Center brings together community members, social entrepreneurs, nonprofits, service providers, and researchers committed to solving challenges facing Baltimore's neighborhoods. For nearly a hundred years, the site was home to the A. Hoen & Company Lithography plant creating everything from iconic National Geographic maps to Topps baseball cards to concert placards. The building became vacant like so many other industrial properties and fell into dereliction and ultimately City-ownership. In 2014, the City awarded the redevelopment rights to City Life Historic Properties, later adding Cross Street Partners and Strong City Baltimore as a nonprofit partner. The redevelopment of this historic whole-block, six-building campus represents $28.6M in total investment including federal, state and city support.

Tenants of the new Hoen Building include the non-profit Strong City Baltimore, Associated Builders and Contractors (ABC) and City Life Community Builders. Nationally recognized for the quality of the preservation work, the Hoen Building is central to other neighborhood improvements, attracting significant private investment to the Broadway East Impact Investment Area.

EXPANDING AFFORDABLE HOUSING

The Affordable Housing Trust Fund Commission hosting a monthly meeting in City Hall.

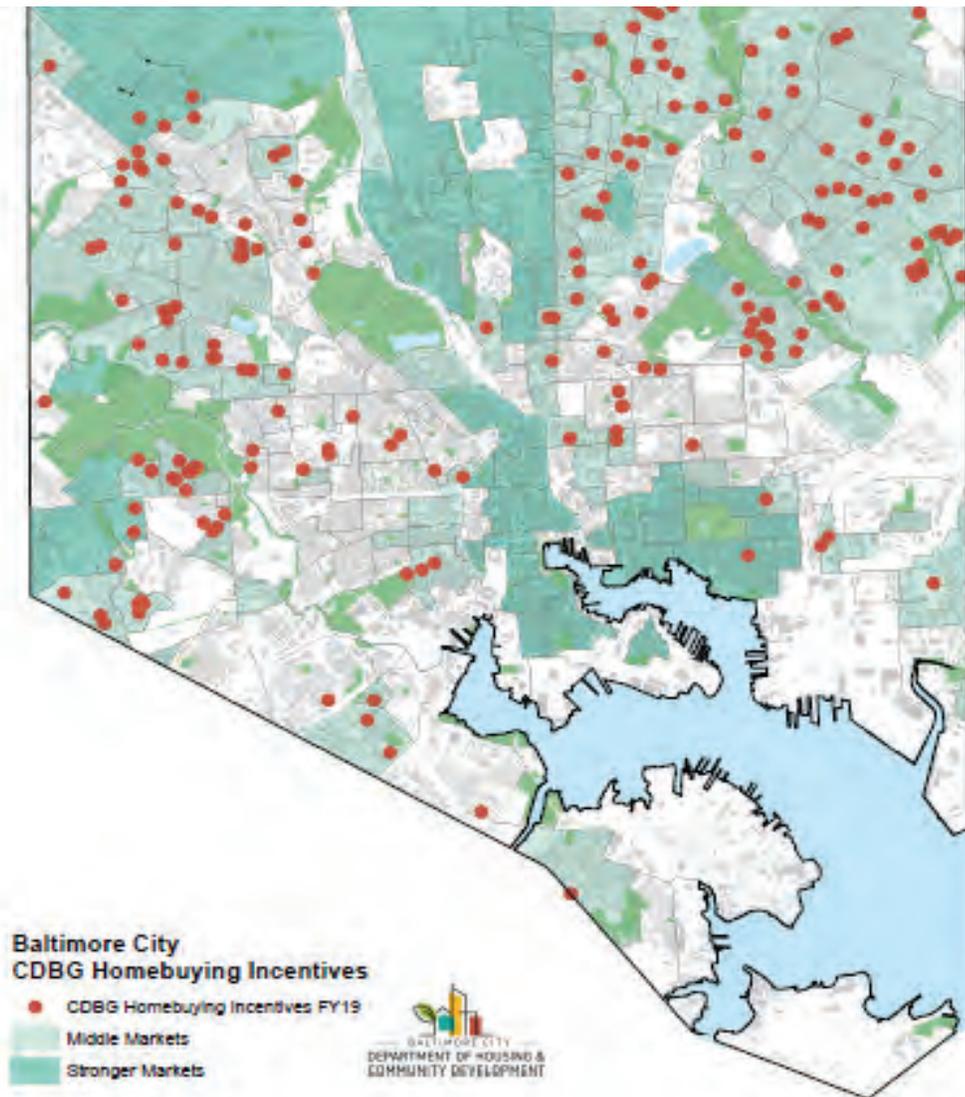

EXPANDING AFFORDABLE HOUSING

Using local, state and federal resources - DHCD works with communities and developers to help produce housing for low-income households. Most commonly, HOME Investment Partnerships Program funds are used in combination with Low Income Housing Tax Credits and other state and local subsidies and private capital for affordable rentals and CDBG funds for affordable homeownership.

AFFORDABLE HOMEOWNERSHIP SUPPORT

Through the Division of Homeownership and Housing Preservation, DHCD provides down-payment assistance incentives to low- and moderate-income homeowners throughout the City. In 2019, the Department provided more than $2 million in incentives, primarily to African-American homebuyers in middle-income City neighborhoods. DHCD also supports housing counseling through CDBG and other sources.

AFFORDABLE RENTAL HOUSING DEVELOPMENTS

Bakers View City Bond $1.1 million

In March of 2019, the Druid Heights Community Development Corporation closed on financing, including $1.1 million in City Bond capital and began construction in [June 2019] on six townhomes in Phase Two of its 87 unit affordable, homeownership development program. Built on the cleared site of a formerly blighted block, these townhomes reduce density in the neighborhood, will face a new urban square, and will anchor ongoing catalytic improvements in the Druid Heights neighborhood.

1234 McElderry Apartments HOME loan $1.5 million

In May of 2019, DHCD closed on project financing with the non-profit Mission First Housing Development Corporation in partnership with the Henson Development Company on this $30-million 104 unit mixed-income rental project. 1234 McElderry includes 84 affordable units and 20 market-rate units as well as ground-level retail. Constructed on the site of the former Somerset Homes, the project is the first phase of the multi-phase Perkins Somerset Old Town Transformation Plan.

Greenmount Chase Multifamily Apartments HOME loan $2 million

In June of 2019, DHCD closed on a $2 million HOME loan to ReBuild Metro in support of this $16 million, affordable rental new construction project in the Johnston Square neighborhood. Greenmount Chase Multifamily Apartments began construction in [June 2019] and will anchor ongoing catalytic investments in Johnston Square.

Marshall Gardens City PILOT, City Funded Demolitions and Low-Cost Land

Marshall Gardens is an 87-unit development of 60 townhomes and a 27-unit apartment building encompassing three vacant city blocks in the Upton and Druid Heights neighborhoods of Central West Baltimore. Mostly new construction, the project includes the rehabilitation of five existing, historic rowhouses. The City completed demolition and conveyed the land at nominal cost and approved a PILOT in September of 2019. Occupancy is expected in 2021.

Four Ten Lofts Apartments HOME loan $750,000, City Bond $400,000

In November of 2019, DHCD closed on HOME funds and City capital resources to Four Ten Lofts, LLC, a joint venture consisting of the French Development Company and Episcopal Housing Corporation, for 68 affordable rental units within a 76-unit mixed income development in downtown Baltimore. Forty-eight units are targeted to artists and 20 will be set aside as permanent supportive housing for chronically homeless individuals.

Park View at Coldspring HOME loan $1.1 million

RF Coldspring Limited Partnership, a joint venture consisting of affiliates of Enterprise Homes, Inc, Unity Properties and M&T Bank closed on financing including a HOME loan in November of 2019. Funds will help preserve and upgrade ninety-nine affordable rental units for low-income elderly households in Coldstream New Town community. The total development cost of the renovation project is over $16 million.

22 Light Street Apartments HOME loan $1 million HOME

Located in downtown Baltimore, 22 Light Street Apartments, LLC will provide thirty-six affordable units for low-income households within a forty-unit historic commercial building. In December of 2019, DHCD provided $1 million in HOME funds to the developer of the site, Osprey Development, leveraging $21 million in total development costs. 22 Light was one of the first buildings constructed after the Baltimore Fire of 1904. The adaptive reuse of the former distillery and office building will provide affordable units in heart of downtown.
